

CALL FOR PROPOSALS: CURRICULUM INTERNATIONALIZATION FACULTY PROJECT

Funded By the U.S. Department of Education "Pathways to Africa, Asia, and the Caribbean" UISFL Grant

2nd Faculty Cohort Course Impact: Fall -2019 & Spring-2020

The Office of International Education is pleased to invite Proposals from faculty members to internationalize existing courses. The purpose of this project is to encourage ASU faculty to integrate international and intercultural dimension into the content of existing ASU courses through innovative content and pedagogy. The goal is to integrate global learning into students overall learning and enhance the quality of academics and learning outcomes at ASU.

Examples of projects that would be considered might include:

- Using instructional technology to incorporate an international and international dimension, such as
  - Arranging for interactions (discussions, shared assignments, common virtual environments) between ASU students and other students in a similar class at a university abroad( Exploring COIL);
  - Adding lectures by guest faculty or experts from an international background or organization locally, nationally or internationally;
  - Utilizing resources that allow students to simulate global activities or situations (e.g., international trends in all subject topics in arts, sciences, social sciences, education (language/literature, music, drama, mathematics, computer, biology, history health issues, marketing trends, international trade; natural environments, etc.);
- Using locally based, international community resources to contribute international content, assignments, or projects;
- incorporating a research project that would encourage students to explore international aspects of existing content etc.
- Enhancing a course with new material that would significantly increase global learning outcomes and competency of students (e.g., global media or documentaries to contribute to development of course projects).
